DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed April 15, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Regarding applicant's argument on page 5 pertaining to the shifting of the bending mechanism of Erie is based on scenarios created by the applicant no factual evidence has been provided for the shifting of the bending mechanism to occur. Furthermore, Erie discloses a bending mechanism having a screwing shaft it is not clear how the shaft may shift.

Regarding applicant's argument on page 6, pertaining to the play and tolerance of the stepper motor in column 3 line 45-48 Erie discloses providing fine adjustments to the grating, where the force to move to the screwing shaft of the bending mechanism is provided by the stepper motor, thereby it is not clear how the stepper motor has play or tolerance.

Regarding applicant's argument on page 6, pertaining to the stepper motor being part of the bending mechanism, applicant has portrayed a manual bending mechanism where the force to adjust the bending mechanism screw is provided by a separate means, such as an operator, thereby based on applicant's argument the operator is part of the bending mechanism. Examiner does not agree with applicant's argument and maintains that the stepper motor is a means to provide a force for adjustments of the bending mechanism of Erie as such the stepper motor is a separate structure from the bending mechanism.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the elements. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted elements are: no structure has been recited for the optical resonator.

Regarding claims 1 and 2,

Applicant has created a confusing claim by claiming that adjustment of the curvature of the wavelength selection element impossible.

Regarding claim 2,

It is not clear to the examiner if the bending mechanism and the adjustment means are the system, since both provide adjustment to the curvature.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Erie et al.

Figure 2 illustrates a laser system having a grating (16) connected to a bending mechanism (20A) for providing compressive force or tension force for adjusting the curvature of the grating. The bending mechanism is connected to a grating curvature stepper motor for the controlling the grating curvature and holding the position of the grating constant, as disclosed in column 4 lines 38-45. As shown the bending mechanism and the stepper motor are separate structures where one provides the curvature bending and the other controls curvature adjustment while maintaining it at a constant position.
